Now, let's lead you through the factors that we look into during the comprehensive review. One's academic potential and personal quality are as diverse as finger prints. Therefore, we have decided to evaluate the applicant's overall academic ability and potential by taking a comprehensive approach, considering Academic Environment, Academic Achievement, Academic Goals and Interest, and Extracurricular Activities.

Regarding the Academic Environment and Background, we believe that the school environment itself is not a standard for evaluating a student's academic ability. Thus, the applicants who have done their best in a given environment will be positively assessed regarding their learning attitude.

Furthermore, Academic Achievement does not necessarily mean a high GPA. It is more about how much the applicants have been actively completing the curriculum with a sense of challenge. For instance, an applicant who has received a B in a challenging subject may be highly rated compared to an applicant who has achieved an A in a relatively easy subject.

As for Academic Goals and Interest, we always emphasize the importance of motivation and passion for academics. At SNU, we hope all applicants have a clear purpose and reason to their passion in studying.

However, all of these do not mean that SNU accepts students who are only competent in 'studying'. Regarding Extracurricular activities, we look forward to students who try to achieve balanced growth in intelligence and sensibility. This is not only revealed through the leadership experience in school clubs and volunteer activities, but also the efforts that students have truly put into any activity.
